STEEL ERECTORS ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

Volunteers Needed for the New Steel Erection Training Committee

The Board of Directors of the Steel Erectors Association of America is looking for people to serve on a Steel Erection Training Committee. Interested members should respond by April 20, 2013 to Tom Underhill: executivedirector@seaa.net or tomunderhill@seaa.net

The emphasis of the Committee will be to look for better and/or different ways to train ironworkers in the ironworker curriculum. Our goal is to offer a program for small and large companies that can be used either at your headquarters in a classroom, at your jobsite, via the internet, teleconferencing or training assessment centers located in different geographical areas. This Committee will make recommendations to the SEAA Board of Directors to forward this cause.

Committee members need to be available to meet in person and/or through video conferencing for up to six times by the end of 2014.

Two of our Board Members will be spearheading this effort: Ed Valencia of LPR Construction Company, Inc. has tentatively agreed to be the Chairman of this committee; Eddie Williams of Buckner Companies will serve as Co-Chairman.
